Message: from Father Sebastian: During this second Sunday of the Christmas Octave, we continue to rejoice in the "Word made flesh" who dwells among us as the ultimate light and wisdom of God. As the personification of divine wisdom, Jesus assumed our human nature to dispel the darkness of sin and illuminate our hearts with the truth of the Father. Saint Paul reminds us that through Christ, we receive every spiritual blessing, allowing the invisible God to be met, touched, and approached in a deeply personal way. By becoming a partaker of our humanity, Jesus has opened the way for us to become partakers of His divinity and to be fully united with God as His beloved children. This season invites us to welcome this Light into our lives, knowing more clearly than ever that God loves us and desires our eternal salvation. Let us show our gratitude for this great gift by sharing Christ's love with others and allowing His glory to fill our lives with lasting peace
